

Letter To The Editor Student Thinks CI Jealous Of WNTC

Dear Sir:

WNTC and the CI are the two largest service organizations on the Clarkson campus. The radio station is now operating full scale with nothing but bigger and better programs planned for the future. This is not the same WNTC that has been off and on again innumerable times in the past years, but a new, powerful organization that can become one of Clarkson's greatest assets.

From my viewpoint it seems that the CI staff is fearful of WNTC overshadowing their organization and wishes to prevent this by ridiculing WNTC. This seems a very childish attitude. Why cannot the two largest organizations cooperate to give the students the utmost in the services afforded by any radio station and newspaper. It is not only Mr. Scholz, but also Mr. Sherrick, who suddenly thinks that he knows everything about his own and everybody else's job. Come on kiddies—play nice!

Sincerely,

William A. Farone.

EDITOR'S NOTE: In view of the fact that we cannot recall ever having told WNTC either what or how it should broadcast, we find the above statement rather absurd. In fact, we rather pity the poor gentleman for his inability to comprehend the meaning of the words he himself writes.

As of this moment we have received a total of four letters requesting us to print the WNTC schedule. Two of these are from WNTC staff members, one was unsigned and therefore ignored, and the remaining person may pick up our only copy of the schedule next Wednesday evening at the CI office.
